Acceptable use of internet services in Brushford Parish Hall Policy Statement

We provide a free wi-fi access to the internet for people using the Hall.

Please be aware of the following:

- Internet access at the Hall is filtered. However, we cannot guarantee all undesirable material will be blocked and the filter may occasionally block sites of interest
- The internet is not a secure medium and third parties may be able to obtain information regarding your activities. Be aware of this when transmitting confidential information such as address or credit card details
- All forms of material contained on the internet, unless otherwise stated, are protected by copyright
- You are responsible for observing the condition of copyright on each site you visit. Brushford Parish Hall does not accept liability should you breach copyright law.

Brushford Parish Hall CIO:

- Is not responsible for the accuracy, completeness or appropriateness of the information supplied on the internet.
- Does not accept responsibility or liability for any claim, loss or damage resulting from your use of the service.
- Reserves the right for any Trustee to deny user access to the internet service and to terminate any connection to subject matter which they deem unsuitable for a public environment. We also reserve the right to monitor sites visited by members of the public and report misuse to the appropriate authorities.
- Therefore, you must assume full responsibility for you and your guests using these services. Any breach of these conditions may result in the withdrawal of future access to the internet and may also result in withdrawal of your Hall bookings.
